FIGHT IN THE OPEN

So far, in the present campaign dirty politics have not been resorted to and it is sincerely to be hoped that the closing days will see no change in the tactics employed. It has been a clean fight upon issues which were clearly defined, and it would be very regrettable if at the last hour a contest like this should be spoiled. There have been some differences of opinion as to what constituted the issues of the campaign. The Mirror has contended and still contends that the one great issue is Forakerism. The importance of the selection of a successor for Foraker when Foraker is an aspirant for the place is paramount. All other political questions this year are inferior to this. The county local option question was introduced into the campaign upon the republican side of the house, first by Mr. S. E. DeWolfe and later by Rev. C. W. Hensel, when he began his independent campaign. The democrats have never had the question introduced into their ranks. It was not mentioned in the convention which nominated Mr. Smith, and Mr. Smith has remained faithful to the convention which nominated him. He is the nominee of his party and as such has refused to pledge himself to the advocates of the plan of county local option.

Along the lines of the issues, this campaign has been conducted so far.

Personalities have not entered into the contest at any time and this is indeed gratifying for nothing is more disgusting than mud slinging. The issues have been pretty clearly defined and now the close of the fight is rapidly approaching. Saturday evening will, or should, practically end the contest so far as the newspapers are concerned. So far as the Mirror is concerned, eleventh hour politics have never been resorted to. What we have had to say concerning issues or candidates has not been put off until reply was impossible. As much, however, can not be said for the other local paper. When it suited best its purpose its bitterest attacks have been saved until the last issue before election day, and it is to warn the voters against this that this is written. The mere fact that the arguments are put off until the evening before election day, is in itself evidence of the incorrectness of the assertions. This should appeal to every thinking man and he should take all such underhand politics, not only with a grain but with a whole hand full of salt. The man who will circulate eleventh hour stories concerning his political opponent or about the candidates on the opposing ticket, would stab a man in the back were he not afraid of the consequences.

As stated before, the Mirror has kept clear of all underhand work, preferring to make its fight along clean political lines and this will be its policy until the close, unless it is forced to deviate from this course in order to meet a man with weapons of his own choosing.

BEHOLD THE BOSS

The attitude which the editor of the local Foraker organ has assumed during the past few days points clearly to the fact that he has usurped unto himself the leadership of the Republican party in Marion county. Not only do his expressions in the columns of his paper indicate this, but his statement that he proposes to whip all republicans into line before election day is further evidence that the pretender has taken up his march and will not be satisfied until he is seated upon the throne with a whip in his hand in place of a scepter, and with his heel upon the neck of the voter who dares to presume he has the right to vote other than as he shall dictate.

In short, the pretender has assumed the attitude of dictator. Patterning after George B. Cox, he presumes to dictate how things are to go. He has dictated the nomination and now he seeks to drive all of his party members who dare have a dissenting opinion back into line. This is his expressed intention and during the next few days the crack of the party whip may be expected by all who dare oppose his sweet will.

A member of the republican central committee is authority for the statement that before the sun rises on another Sunday morning, the committee will have all the money it can use to carry the county for Donithen. And yet the Star says Foraker is not an issue. If Foraker be not back of Donithen, then who is going to put up this money for campaign purposes? Foraker stands next to the corporations and can get all of the money he wants. Does anyone suppose the corporations or Senator Foraker himself proposes putting money into this campaign when there is only one year to serve, if there is not something back of it all? Here again is revealed the scheme to elect Foraker at the coming session of the legislature.

No county or city official ever had a cleaner record than Art W. Bryant during his two terms of recorder. He made no enemies and won hundreds of new friends through his admirable management of the office. This fall Mr. Bryant stands before the voters of Marion as one of the Democratic candidates for council-at-large. The nomination was given him without his solicitation, in fact he was out of the city at the time the ticket was chosen. A vote for Bryant is a vote for the best interests of Marion.

As a member of the board of public service, B. F. Waples has done the city valued service. Ever since this board was created, and at a time when it was difficult to ascertain just what were the duties of a board member, Mr. Waples gave the greatest evidence of his thorough knowledge of affairs. Marion cannot afford to lose the services of this man and the voters should see to it that he is elected councilman-at-large, for which he is a candidate this fall.

We have imagined the stuff to eat they sell in hotels and restaurants along with the route of the Panama canal might be pretty bad, but we never suspected it was so bad that they printed the bills of fare in French almost exclusively.

Charles E. Gompi, the second Democratic candidate for justice, is making a great campaign and has an excellent chance of election. Mr. Gompi is a man who has held the office before and is known to be capable in every respect.

One attorney alleges that football is nothing less than prize-fighting and asks for an injunction restraining the High School pupils of his town from playing the game. The attorney was certainly in a game at some time.

Out in the First ward they are saying that George Neely is likely to have things his own way in the fight for council. He is known to practically everyone in that part of the city and is certain of a heavy vote.

At least, the President may depend upon the staunch support of Senator Foraker in his efforts to prevent a Roosevelt stampede in the next Republican convention.

The rate per carriage for funerals in Macon, Georgia, hereafter will be increased from $4 to $5. On the account of the increased cost of dying we suppose.

Since Mr. Cleveland is getting better, in spite of the disagreements of his three doctors, he may conclude that it is all due to the luck supposed to dwell in odd numbers.

Charles H. Conley seeks reelection as justice of the peace and there are few people who think there is any possibility of defeating him. Mr. Conley has made an ideal justice of the peace.

Everyone in the Second ward thinks well of J. J. Rudolph as a candidate for council. Mr. Rudolph has a host of particular friends who are sparing no effort to secure his election.

The thing that worries the local Foraker organ most is the fact that it has declared for county local option for Mr. Donithen's sake, but the people will not believe in its sincerity.

It was entirely unnecessary for Mr. Roosevelt to take that cold plunge into Bear Lake, Louisiana, to convince his companions that he is not a milkop or a mollycoddle.

Count whatchisname says he loves Miss Gladys Vanderbilt "for herself alone." But she doesn't deny that he needs the money.

A Raleigh college has substituted a mass fight for hazing. The "square deal" seems to have struck South Carolina too.

A Mr. Robb runs the Chattanooga gas works, and the newspapers of that city intimate that he lives up to his name.

Like as not, Senator Foraker sent all those Louisiana bears notice in time to get out of the way of Roosevelt.

It is to be hoped that the automatic typewriter which is now being perfected will be able to spell correctly.

"Any woman can marry any man she wants" asserts Gertrude Atherton. Every day seems to bring something new for the men to worry about.

Evidently, the average canebreaker bear would rather be considered a live mollycoddle than a dead hero.

What Others Say.

DELAYS IN CRIMINAL CASES.

Stanford White was killed on the night of June 25, 1905, but his slayer was not brought to trial till January 23, 1907. The long and tedious trial failed and Thaw has been in prison ever since awaiting a second trial, which is understood to have been set for a month or two hence. This has been made the occasion of some newspaper sermonizing on the delay of justice and there has been a tendency to score District Attorney Jerome for the protracted postponement. He is told that the Constitution of the United States contains a clause providing that "the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy trial." What this clause has to do with the trial of Thaw which will be under the laws of New York, is not explained.

Whether the case could be removed to the United States Court or not is not intimated.

The first trial, however, was without unreasonable delay under the unusual circumstances surrounding it. It was prolonged to a most tedious length by the complications arising out of the guarding of Evelyn Thaw's story about her treatment by White from the usual legal treatment. No evidence was permitted to show that Evelyn's evidence in which she had plainly been carefully drilled, was a lie. It was adduced to show that Thaw had been set crazy by the story as told to him by his wife and was therefore not to be held accountable for the murder of White.

Lecturing on the delay will not have much effect to change public opinion as to the guilt of Thaw.

The long waiting has been no doubt of much advantage to the defendant as to the prosecution. He has needed all the time he can get. Any man accused of a sensational murder increased his hopes of acquittal by getting delay. A story which took a long time in telling and which is not commonly believed, and the refusal of the court to hear evidence in denial made the delay, and is maintaining it still. Are we to have the same old miserable and utterly improbable recital over again and the same interjection of evidence that it was a fabrication?

It is true as claimed, that long deferred murder trials involve the risk of the death or disappearance of importance witnesses, but the chances in such a hazard as that are all in favor of the accused man. Thaw is not being persecuted, but the indications are that he will be persecuted to the last possibility. Whether the rulings to the prisoner's advantage were right or not, common sense teaches that they were exceedingly unfair in morals to the state. They turned the trial of Thaw for murder into the trial of Stanford White on his life reputation, and that trial after his death. The defense was not entitled to more consideration than it got, or than it is getting now. The story that saved Thaw from the penalty was past human belief.

It will be exceedingly interesting to watch the next trial, if there shall be one. What will be the legal attitude as to Evelyn's testimony? What new light have the lawyers on the subject? Will there be a new decision by another judge? Will Thaw be electrocuted? Or will the plea of insanity be offered and accepted, and the accused man doomed to a life long surveillance? A verdict of temporary aberration would be a burlesque.

ELOPERS BARRED

They Came From Germany Only to Find the Doors to This Country Locked.

Washington, Oct. 31.—Commissioner General Sargent of the bureau of immigration yesterday denied the appeal of a confessed eloping couple from Berlin, Germany, for admission to the United States.

The man and woman were ordered deported and they sailed from Baltimore on the steamer Rhein, of the North German Lloyd line for Bremen.

Several days ago Frau Elizabeth Hess, thirty-five, and Hans Nachtigall, twenty-one, arrived at Baltimore on the Rhein. They had been preceded by a cablegram from the husband of the woman, who is secretary of the railway mail service in Berlin. The husband cabled that his wife had eloped with Nachtigall and he desired the couple to be detained and if possible returned to Germany.

The couple were examined before a board of special inquiry at Baltimore. They admitted that they had run away from Germany, the woman explaining that she could not live happily with her husband. She supplied the money for the expenses of both herself and Nachtigall.

The board of inquiry ordered the deportation of the couple. An appeal was taken to Commissioner General Sargent and he sustained the decision of the board.

MILLIONAIRE PICKPOCKET

Thirteen Year Old Lad is Arrested and Locked up in Denver.

Denver, Colo., Oct. 31.—Julius Dulskey, aged 13, son of Mandel Dulskey, multimillionaire manufacturer and promoter of Chicago; nephew of Louis Dulskey, noted Chicago corporation lawyer and grandson of one of the greatest Hebrew scholars in America, was arrested at Denver yesterday, by Detectives John C. Mitchell and John Kenney, for picking pockets. He is declared to be the smoothest pickpocket the Denver police has ever landed, despite his age. His identity was learned through a report that he was lost, turned into police headquarters in a new suit from Mrs. Bernike, his aunt, whose husband conducts a plumbing establishment here.

Young Dulskey was arrested for two robberies. Complaints of his operations came from the Union Depot. His method was to approach women in the waiting room and show each a magazine containing a picture of President Roosevelt and his family. Then, pointing to any one of them, he would ask:

"Lady, do you know the Roosevelt family? Which one of them is this?"

When she looked the innocent-looking child deftly opened her purse and took the contents. As the investigation proceeded the detectives discovered that the young thief not only worked at the depot but in other equally prominent sections of the city.

Mrs. E. B. Cole, of Battle Creek, Iowa, was robbed at the depot of $10 and her transportation. Both the tickets were found on Dulskey, as well as the other loot, consisting of a revolver, hidden in a holster under his coat, $40 in money, some expensive cassettes, and an aluminum card, upon which was written "George White, 28 North Broadway, Aurora, Illinois."

ROUGH AND TUMBLE

Introduced to Supplant Hazing in a North Carolina School.

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 31.—A recent case of hazing at the State Agricultural and Mechanical college here caused President Winston of that college to reprove the student body, and in his remarks he advised a man to make fight in the open.

As the result of this the freshmen class sent a challenge to the sophomores to meet them for a test of prowess on the athletic field. Accordingly there was a mass fight this afternoon with about seventy-five on each side.

Lieut. Young U. S. A., the commandant, and members of the junior and senior classes were present and allowed no fighting on the ground, and the scuffling match passed without serious injury to any of the participants.

The sophomores invited the freshmen to battle, when a fierce struggle ensued, and there were many injured on both sides. There were sixty-five men on a side and the noses of four were broken, a number of eyes were blackened and many faces scratched. It is understood that another fight will take place today.

The opposing sides line up, rush at each other, and fight at will, but rough and tumble tactics are barred. President Winston and Lieut. Young believe this will do away with hazing. Many friends of the college here condemn it.

TRAVELING MAN'S COAT

Ashtabula, O., Oct. 31.—Fred S. Converse, who for the last three years has been superintendent of Seamen's Bethel at Ashtabula harbor, has tendered his resignation to take effect on Nov. 1 and will enter the ministry.

Mr. Converse was formerly a resident of Cleveland, out of which city he was banished with a commercial line for many years. He always took an active interest in religious work as a side issue and was well known as a sort of evangelist of the Friends faith.

After coming to Ashtabula, he yielded to local influence and identified himself with the Congregationalist denomination, but did not find that in accordance with his ideas. He has become a Methodist and has received the appointment to the pulpit of the North Center Methodist church in Geneva.

OLD MECCA FOR ELOPERS NO LONGER ACCESSABLE

New York, Oct. 31.—Eloping lovers and others who seek hasty or secret marriages will no longer find a Greta Green in the Little Church Around the Corner here, famous for the romantic unions that have been effected there.

This is the decision of the Rev. George C. Houghton, rector of the church. Dr. Houghton says that when it is possible publicity must attend any marriage at which he may officiate hereafter.

It is his purpose that the banns shall be publicly announced in the old fashioned way before the ceremony, so that any third person who may know that there are reasons why it should not take place, may be able to appear and perhaps save a lifetime of repentance on one side or the other.

PAPER COMPANY IN HANDS OF RECEIVER

Dayton, O., Oct. 31.—The Friend Paper Co., of West Carrollton, a suburb of Dayton, has been placed in the hands of a receiver on application of its president, J. Howard Friend. Henry L. Newell was appointed receiver by Judge O. B. Brown of the common pleas court.

The petition states that the company has debts aggregating $1,000,000; that the stringency in the money two notes aggregating $300,000, and that the stringency in the money market renders the payment of these notes impossible at present.

The receivership is resorted to as a protection measure to shield the property from attacks of small creditors. The company is entirely solvent and is doing a prosperous business.

RAM ATTEMPTS TO EMULATE FAMOUS BULL

Bucyrus, O., Oct. 31.—O. P. Beck has a grievance against the Pennsylvania railroad company and is out a champion ram.

The ram was a blooded Union county animal and was noted as the greatest butter in this part of Ohio. Yesterday the animal wandered to the railway tracks, and, noting the approach of the Pennsylvania crack eighteen-hour train, indulged its famed prerogative and went for the approaching flyer with lowered head and valiant mien.

Mr. Beck went to Union county to get a new ram. The flyer is reported to have arrived in New York on time.

COLUMBUS THREATENED WITH A STAMP FAMINE

Columbus, O., Oct. 31.—This city is threatened with a stamp famine when the cashier at the new postoffice building discovered that many of the stamps had stuck together because of the moisture in the newly plastered vault.

There were $75,000 worth of stamps in the big vault, and it was necessary to open every package to ascertain whether they were stuck together. This work occupied much time.

Besides many 1-cent and 2-cent stamp packages which were stuck together as solid as boards, one package of special deliveries containing $10,000 worth was also a solid mass. The stamps will be returned to Washington. Arrangements were made for bringing in stamps from the suburban stations to meet the demand.

RELATIONS BELIEVE GIRL LEFT A FORTUNE

Youngstown, O., Oct. 31.—The relatives of Miss Gertrude Mc. Kelvey, who was murdered in the Orient, are looking for a small fortune, which was left by her there. The relatives so far have been unable to locate the money and other valuable property which she had, and have appealed to the consul general at Hongkong for information regarding it.

The relatives here declare that they have not heard from Mrs. J. C. Whitford, the traveling companion of Miss McKelvey in the east and fear that she has met with a similar fate.

GROSSCUP ARRESTED AND RELEASED ON BOND

Chicago, Oct. 31.—Judge Grosscup was served last evening with a warrant, charging him with manslaughter.

Judge Grosscup is a director in the electric railway at Mattoon, Ill., on which a number of persons recently were killed in a collision. Other officers and directors of the electric line have also been arrested.

Judge Grosscup was prepared to furnish bond of $500, and the serving of the warrant was a mere formality.
